

New information about Autism

The books below have been written by young people who are Autistic and were unable to speak until they discovered a way to let people know that they could speak using letter boards and laptops.

Then their potential was unlocked and they have been able to share their experiences. Both books are excellent and provide a very useful insight to help us understand our Autistic children. They include information about things which helped them. These may be useful for any of our children, at home or at school. We should never underestimate their level of understanding and potential.

There are also You Tube clips about each story.

If you would be interested in joining a session in school to discuss the books in more detail please let me know. admin@mayfield.cumbria.sch.uk
